Navy, President's Pet, Comes Newly Rich,
Cocksure, Less Efficient

WASHINGTON — Those in contact with the Navy these days note the same change which comes over many human beings who come suddenly into easy money.

During most of the years since the World War, the Navy has had to fight for every dollar it got from Congress. As a result it made every dollar go a long way. During those years the Navy had an enviable reputation for economy and efficiency. It officers were on their mettle, generally considered more efficient than the Army.

Now the situation is reversed. At no time since war days has the Navy had so much money to spend. And at no time, not even during war days, has the Navy been so close to the White House.

It has become most axiomatic among New Deal truists that the Navy is the President's pet. When it wants, he gives.

The result is more waste in the Navy than ever before; more cocksureness on the part of officers, less efficiency.

One bureau where the new flood of money is most apparent and most amusing is in Naval Intelligence. Here the funds for espionage suddenly have been increased, with the result that espionage now is being carried on even in Great Britain—though this undoubtedly will be denied.

Results of this espionage for the most part are ludicrous, especially in Japan. But the Japanese are getting a great kick out of them.

When the Navy Department was strapped, it got naval intelligence without charge from American business men in Japan who could speak at real experts on social, economic and political conditions within the country.

Now with money to spend, Naval Intelligence is able to employ Japanese agents. This is what gives the greatest kick to the Emperor, immediately report to their own officials and feed back whatever information the Japanese agent turned in a blue print of a new gun allegedly just invented for the navy of Nippon.

American Naval Intelligence officers, greatly pleased, sent the blue print over to Naval Ordnance experts. They declared the gun could not be manufactured. The Japanese apparently had a sense of humor. They put a curve in the gun.

Blind Senator

The office of blind Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma is unlike other Senate offices. It has no desk.

The Senator sits in a big leather chair with books balanced on the arms and tucked away in the upholstery. More books are piled up on other chairs.

His secretary would like to put the room in better order, but Gore will not let her touch the books. He knows where each one is, can put his hand immediately on John Stuart Mill's "Liberty," or the Poems of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, or Joad's "Introduction to Modern Philosophy," or Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

He sits in the big chair and listens as the books are read aloud to him. Members of his staff declare his memory for what has been read puts them to shame.

He has not learned Braille, since much of what he must study

HEER IS SUED FOR DAMAGES OF $25,000

Columbus Political Leader Named in Petition of W. J. Whitehead.

COLLISION NOV. 27

Ashville Man Cites Numerous Injuries

Walter F. Heer, Columbus political leader, was named defendant in a $25,000 Pickaway-co common pleas court suit today brought by William J. Whitehead, of Harrison-twp. The action is based on an automobile wreck at the intersection of the Scioto trail and the Mackey ford road last Nov. 27 in which Whitehead was hurt.

Whitehead, a well known farmer is represented by Harry Margulis, Max C. Seyfert, Jr., and Gerhardt and Gerhardt.

Heer was uninjured in the collision. The Pickaway-co man asks the damages for numerous injuries including a skull fracture, concussion, sprains and body bruises. He alleges in his petition that he has been rendered unfit for work and for active care of his farming interests. His expectancy of life has been lessened as a result of the collision, Mr. Whitehead asserts.

Month In Hospital

The plaintiff spent a month in Berger hospital as a result of the crash.

The petition says that Whitehead was driving his Packard car west on the Mackey ford road and stopped the vehicle before he entered the highway. Before starting across the Scioto trail, he asserts, he looked both directions. When his car had passed the center of the road and the front wheels were off the main highway, Heer's LaSalle sedan crashed against his machine, the petition declares.

Whitehead charges Heer with excessive speed, driving without due regard for others and says that he was unable to stop his car until it had gone 75 feet past the scene of the collision.

Judge J. W. Adkins, Friday was hearing the suit of Albert E. Schleich against Ellen Hulise and others for construction of a will. The action was filed Aug. 25, 1930.

Witnesses subpoenaed are Jesse Baum, Meinhard Trump, Charles Stoer, C. W. Hays, Turney Krimmel and George Wardell.

Attorneys in the case are C. A. Leist, for Schleich, George G. Adkins and L. R. Pugh for the defendants and Ray W. Davis representing several school boards involved.

There is no jury in the case.

DUST MAY REACH SOUTHERN OHIO

CINCINNATI, April 12 — The tail end of the dust storms that have been sweeping the western states today threatened to swing across the southwest corner of Ohio but with greatly diminished force. Shifting winds from the north also may force the dust clouds southward.

Dust was observed in the air high above Lunken airport here yesterday but there was only a light scattering of it, believed to be from dust clouds that had pushed as far eastward as Louisville and Indianapolis.

Points west of Indianapolis reported that dust clouds which appeared there early yesterday had been washed away by rain. In view of that, weather observers said, the dust clouds even if they reached Ohio are not expected to be heavy.

Worley Assails Davey Bond Plan

COLUMBUS, April 11—Alarmed at the first-round success of Governor Davey's bond moratorium proposal in the house taxation committee, officials of the Ohio League of Municipalities today prepared to move quickly against the measure with a concentrated appeal direct to members of the general assembly.

Mayor Henry Worley of Columbus, president of the municipality league, declared an active campaign would be waged by members of the league throughout the state to persuade the legislators from their districts to oppose the plan.

Take no Chances

"I had understood the bill would not be reported out of the house tax committee," Worley said. "Legislative leaders now have assured us that the proposal will be defeated in the house. But we are taking no chances."

Worley branded the moratorium proposed as "a negative plan." "We need a positive plan of aiding bankrupt cities," he declared. "We need legislation guaranteeing sufficient taxation revenue to maintain our municipal governments."

COLUMBUS, April 12—Described as a "dangerous measure" by anti-administration Democrats and Republicans, Governor Martin L. Davey's proposed two-year bond moratorium today moved a step nearer a showdown in the Ohio legislature.

The moratorium is the main unit in an emergency financial program advocated by Davey to avoid new taxation. It contemplates postponing payment of maturing public bond principal until Jan. 1, 1937, but stipulates that interest must be kept up.

The matter was discussed by several members and the parking situation was regarded by all as a serious problem. Engineer Talks On 'Conditions'

Speaking from an engineer's viewpoint, C. E. Boyd, federal engineer who is supervising the work at the post office, gave some of his ideas of present conditions and how they can be solved at the Rotary meeting Thursday.

"Many people cannot tell the difference between right and wrong," he said, "and some people are short sighted, selfish and greedy. With many classes of people living in our country it is difficult to solve the many serious problems that confront us today."

When things quit growing they deteriorate, he continued, and that is what has happened to bring about some of the present difficulties.

"Start the farmer and you start all the wheels of industry," was his suggestion to the solution of ending the so-called depression. "Farming is our biggest industry, with the building trades the next largest," he said, "and when the farmer is paid prices for the things he raises commensurate to the things he buys we can expect business to again return to this country."

Fred Clark, chairman of the membership committee, addressed the new members regarding Rotary. The new members are C. C. Young, D. V. Courtwright, Ross Hunsicker, Glenn Lytle, David May, Charles Owens and E. L. Ebert.

BULLETIN

ROCKVILLE, Md., April 11 —Percy Line, driver of the school bus in which 14 high school students met their death in a rail crossing smash here last night, was formally charged with manslaughter today. An inquest was set for Tuesday morning.

WASHINGTON, April 12—Roaring through the fog and rain around midnight, the Baltimore and Ohio's St. Louis to Washington flyer crashed into a school bus filled with singing high school students.

Before daylight the death list was placed at 14 with the number expected to rise after a complete canvass of Washington and Maryland hospitals and Rockville homes.

Blow Engine Whistle

Railroad officials stated the crossing, located just east of Rockville, in nearby Maryland, is protected by a sounding bell. They reported Engineer J. A. Shewbridge blew the regular two long and two short blasts of the whistle—the regular road crossing warning—when his train was some distance away from the cross-over. The children were students of the Williamsport, (Md.), high school. They had attended a chemistry show at the University of Maryland, at College Park, near Washington.

Starting back to Williamsport at 11:30 p. m. with the boys and girls singing merrily, the chauffeur took a back road, the shortest route to the main highway to Williamsport, which crosses the railroad tracks just east of Rockville.

"Just as we came upon the tracks I saw the headlights," said Percy Line, 39, of Hagerstown, Md., the chauffeur. He said he had been driving slowly because of the fog and rain.

"It seemed to me the headlights were literally staring into my windshield," the grief-stricken driver continued. "I stepped on the accelerator and we were almost clear when the smash came. It was as if a giant hand snatched us into the air and ran us apart."

The bus was carrying 27 students of the school senior chemistry class who were in charge of Miss Louise Fink, 27, their teacher.

The driver and teacher were among the few who escaped serious injury because they were sitting in the front of the bus while the train smashed into the rear of the vehicle, virtually cutting it in two.

Miss Fink had just remarked to Percy about it being a bad night for driving when the train was on top of us and the bus was wrecked," she said.

"We found bodies and parts of bodies scattered down the right of way for nearly a quarter of a mile," said Dr. G. H. Hart, of Rockville.

The deputies who made the arrest were Roland Ruth and Roy Goldsberry. Fleming was immediately hustled out of town for Athens where he was expected to be arraigned before Magistrate Pearl Miller.

A bondsman and an attorney for Fleming also left immediately for Athens.

The charges at Athens, which were filed by Deputy Sheriff Ruth, charge Fleming with "corrupting the morals of children" through the sale of his paper.

STATE STUDENTS PLEAD FOR PEACE

Pacificist In Demonstrations at Number of Schools Through State

COLUMBUS, April 12—Ohio college officials today surveyed militant camps of students as a "war of placards and banners" stirred campuses of ten schools over the National Students' League campaign for peace.

Parades, peace strikes and demonstrations were outlawed by executives of Ohio State University here, but students in nine other colleges called a one-hour "peace demonstration."

While no disturbances were reported, flaring banners bearing strong phrases hinted at hostile feeling between members of the Students' League forces and other groups who banded together under such names as "Anti-Communists," "Red-Blooded Americans" and "We're Not Afraid to Fight."

The one-hour peace demonstrations were scheduled at Antioch college, Yellow Springs; Western Reserve university, Cleveland; Wooster college, Wooster; Bluffton college, Bluffton; Oberlin college, Oberlin; Denison university, Granville; University of Cincinnati, Ohio university, Athens and Wittenberg college, Springfield.

Neither boat has been seen since Monday.

SOFT BALL LEAGUE MEETING IS CALLED FOR MONDAY

8-TEAM LOOP IS EXPECTED

All Who Intend to Back or Manage Team: Urged to Attend Meeting

With May 1st the weather expected, many enthusiasts of recreation ball have urged that a meeting be called in an effort to again organize a league.

The meeting will be Monday at 8 o'clock in The Herald office with all persons intending to back and manage teams expected to attend. Officers will be elected and other arrangements will be taken care of.

Frank A. Lynch headed the league last summer with George E. "Bones" Hammel as secretary. Lynch is expected to preside at Monday's meeting.

It is probable the league, if organized, will start the first Monday in May which would be May 6. According to reports now circulating there would be either six or eight teams in the league. Joe Glitt has reported he will back a team with some of the boys on last year's McClellan team on his roster. The Circleville Oils, champions the last two years, will be in the race, and so will the Mecca restaurant, the Container Corporation, Eshelman's mill, a combined team of Circle City and Pickaway dairy, it is reported, the Given Oils, and others. Whether the Ralston-Purina Co. will be represented is not certain.

Stringent rules on eligibility, entrance fees, and numerous other details must be ironed out so it is important that all persons interested attend the meeting.

TEAMS END TOURS

NEW YORK, April 12—The New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers today had written finis to their spring tours. The Yanks ended their travels by trouncing the Charlotte Hornets, of the Piedmont league, yesterday, 10-0. The Dodgers finished their trip rather dismally with a 3-2 licking by the Senators in Washington. Both teams will have their aces on the mound for today's game. The Yanks offer Vernon Gomez and Pat Malone in the pitching roles while Casey Stengel will depend on the tossing of Van Mungo and Watson Clark. The Dodger training season record is 15 wins and 7 losses. The Yanks come home with 17 victories and only six defeats.

First, there is Joe Sprinz behind the old platter; then there are Mickey Heath, Otto Bluege and Freddie Bedore in the infield. Jim Elliott, the jumbo man, is on the hill staff. The Birds have no ex-Indians on their lineup but may wish they had unless some reinforcements are shipped in quick style by the Cardinal farm owners.

MAURI ROSE AGAIN IN MEMORIAL RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 13—A double-barrelled but unsuccessful bid for victory a year ago in the annual 500-mile race over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30 isn't stopping Mauri Rose from trying again. He will be back in the fold when the boys gather for the $100,000 Sweepstakes on Decoration Day with the idea of improving his showing last year when a scant 27 seconds and an unsuccessful protest kept him out of the hall of race track immortals.

Down through a career that careered over hazards of the dirt tracks, fence busting, spills, crashes and perhaps the most unique of all race track incidents in which Mauri was run down by his own car, nothing has quite matched the tough luck that kept him out of the winning bracket a year ago when the race and glory went to Wild Bill Cummings. Mauri thought Wild Bill improved his position while running under a caution flag but the judges disagreed and Mauri was declared officially only second. But 1935 is another year and in a profession which allows no time for nursing grievances, Mauri has almost forgotten the incident in getting ready his new mount. This year he will pilot the four-cylinder Miller motor. The speedy car is powered with a 4-cylinder Miller motor and Mauri has spent the past several months at Clintonville, Wisconsin, working on it.

ARSON THREAT AT WEDDING

MADRID—Villagers tried to prevent a wedding at Tomino, because they thought that the bridegroom, who was 46, was too old for the bride, aged 22. They locked the doors of the church and threatened to burn it down with the wedding party inside. Police arrived in time, and the ceremony was concluded in peace.

DEMPSEY ON THE BICYCLE NOW

Sports writers covering the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago made much of the fact that Tunney saved himself from a knockout by "riding his bicycle". Now the party of the first part, Jack Dempsey, has taken to the bike, but it's a different one, in Artie McGovern's New York gym, where Jack is taking regular workouts.

M'CARTHY HAS JOB IN 1936

Signs Contract; Report Ruth May Take Up Fuchs Stock With Boston Braves

By DAVIS J. WALSH NEW YORK, April 12—Since there seems to be some current agitation over just who is to be the successor of Manager Joseph V. McCarthy, in case the latter fails to win the American league pennant with his New York Yankees this year, I think I may be able to furnish a little confidential data on the subject today. The man's successor has already been signed for 1936 and his name is Joseph V. McCarthy.

This was done well before the Yankees arrived back in New York this morning to start a brief series with the Dodgers, the idea having two purposes. They wished to reassure Mr. McCarthy, who, on his record, is always a little timorous about the future, and to allay any misapprehensions Babe Ruth might entertain about the New York job. I think I might be able to help there, too, by stating that Ruth right now is just about able to recall that there was a New York job.

They tell me that, finally and forever, Judge Fuchs is soon to move out and Ruth is to move in with the Boston Braves and that the announcement will not be long delayed. I assume this means that Ruth is almost certain to succeed Bill McKechie as Boston manager at the close of the year and perhaps before, the understanding being that he, Ruth, is to take up Fuchs' stock in the club.

If that's true, I suppose he can't miss in 1936, there being positively no sense in a right fielder being vice president but not manager.

DELAY DOG VOTE TO NEXT TUESDAY

COLUMBUS, April 12—The vote of the Ohio House of Representatives on the Handley bill to legalize dog racing had been deferred until Tuesday today as supporters of the measure jockeyed to prevent a vote until the full membership of the house is present.

When the bill was called up for a third reading yesterday, Rep. S. A. Heese of Cuyahoga county moved that the bill be passed informally as there were only approximately 100 of the 132 legislators present and the bill needs 68 votes for passage. Heese did not ask for the bill to retain its place on the House calendar because that fact might have precipitated a vote on the measure today when there again will be a small attendance.

Backers of the measure, it was reported, plan to bring up the measure Tuesday when it is hoped there will be at least 125 representatives present. They claim they can poll approximately 75 votes if nearly every member is present.

As at past sessions, opponents of the proposal sounded imitations of the barking and yelping of hounds when the bill was called up for reading. Such demonstrations had aided in defeating the bill at other sessions but they lacked the spontaneity and support that had enjoyed previously. Not more than a dozen members participated in the barking exhibition.

MISS RAWLS, 17, STAR PERFORMER

CHICAGO, April 12 Three first places, good for fifteen points, today assured Katharine Rawls, the flashy 17-year-old Miami Beach mermaid, of individual point honors in the National A. A. U. Women's swimming championship meet.

Miss Rawls made her contribution to the general assault on world and American records at last night's session when she drove in with a brilliant finish to win the 100-yard breast stroke title in 1:20.6, one tenth of a second better than the meet record. Tonight the Miami school girl will compete in the 220-yard free style.

The Washington A. C. team of Seattle smashed its own world's record of 4:19.2 in the 400-yard women's relay in 4:15.3 to defeat the Carnegie library club of Homestead, Pa. Doris Buckley, Betty Lea, Mary Lou Pett and Olive McKean made up the team. In this event the Detroit Yacht club was disqualified for an illegal start.

Dorothy Paynton Hill of Los Angeles piled up 112.56 points to win the low board dive. Her performance in the two new Olympic requirements the front somersault layout and the back dive pike clinched the title from her rivals. Her total was 6.3 points better than that of Marian Mansfield of Chicago.

Judge Landis was said to be "seriously disturbed" by the rumor, and though there is nothing specific in the rules against such a bonus the commissioner has been opposed to all bonuses.

GOLF FACTS

Number 584

ALEX MORRISON says: Percentages are as important in golf as in anything else when it comes to winning. In spite of this I've never seen them mentioned in articles on the game.

The man who knows percentages, particularly about his own game, always has a good chance of beating his opponent. The best example of this is Hal Sims, the bridge expert. He wins as often at golf as he does at bridge. He knows exactly what his average performance is with every club in the bag. The result is he never puts any pressure on himself by overrating his game.

Sims doesn't have to play his best to win, because his opponent invariably overrates himself. It doesn't matter if you shoot in the 90's, 80's or 70's, you should know your true average. Then you'll know your chances of making any shot.

LOUIS TO MEET LAZER TONIGHT

CHICAGO, April 12—In the manner of leading the unsuspecting lamb to the slaughter, the promoters of the Chicago stadium tonight will offer a young heavy-weight named Roy Lazer to the whimsey of Joe Louis, who is variously known as the "Black Bomber," the "Dark Menace" and the "bronze dynamiter."

The supposition is that Lazer is going nowhere in particular and that if he is not murdered, at least he will feel very bad after tonight's prize-fight. Louis, of course, is going to fight "Large Dogs" Carnera next summer for the right to be denied a crack at the heavyweight championship. The point is, of course, that some 15,000 customers are interested to the extent of paying $25,000 to see the spectacle in view of the fact that Louis should be, (even if he won't be) the next heavyweight titleholder.

LOUIS TO MEET LAZER TONIGHT

CHICAGO, April 12—In the manner of leading the unsuspecting lamb to the slaughter, the promoters of the Chicago stadium tonight will offer a young heavyweight named Roy Lazer to the whimsey of Joe Louis, who is variously known as the "Black Bomber," the "Dark Menace" and the "bronze dynamiter."

The supposition is that Lazer is going nowhere in particular and that if he is not murdered, at least he will feel very bad after tonight's prizefight. Louis, of course, is going to fight "Large Dogs" Carnera next summer for the right to be denied a crack at the heavyweight championship.

The point is, of course, that some 15,000 customers are interested to the extent of paying $25,000 to see the spectacle in view of the fact that Louis should be, (even if he won't be) the next heavyweight titleholder.

"How Easy Are Easy Payments and Loans at Legal Rates" is the title of Bulletin 161 of the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service. It is intended for free distribution by county agents to those who have production credit problems.

ON OHIO MORATORIUM NOW CERTAIN

Committee Votes Measure to Floor of House; Pressure To Be Used

COLUMBUS, April 12—The Ohio house of representatives will vote next week, probably on Wednesday or Thursday, on Governor Davey's proposal to declare a two-year moratorium on the payment of public bond principal, Speaker J. Freer Bittinger said today.

As this measure forms the backbone of the executive's emergency financial program, great pressure was expected to be brought to bear on members by the administration to effect its passage.

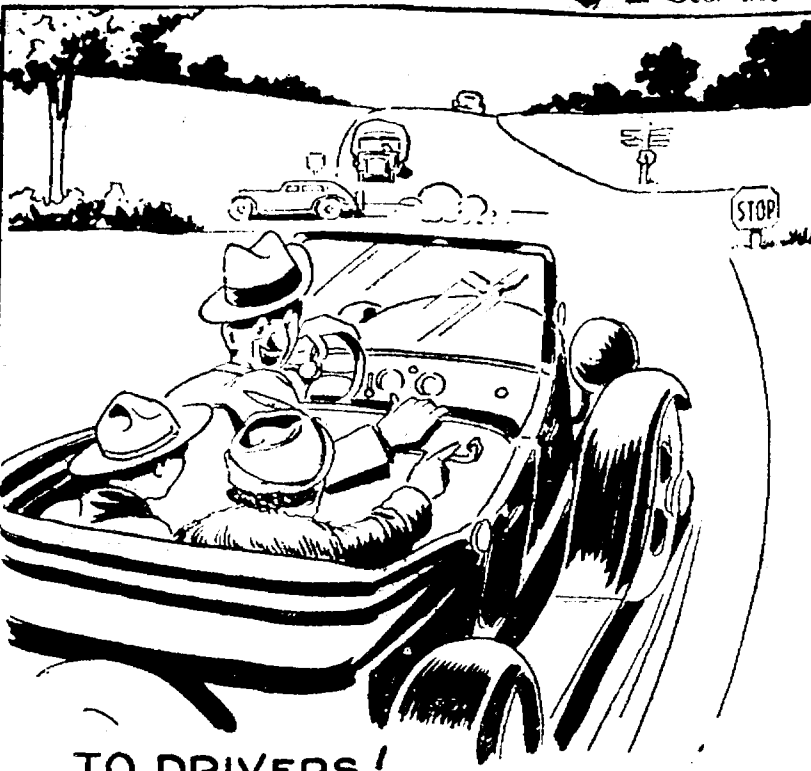

It is opposed vigorously by many House Democrats not aligned with the administration and by spokesmen for holders of Ohio municipal bonds including the state teachers' retirement fund. They argue that it will weaken Ohio's credit and adversely affect even those bonds on which principal payments are kept up.

Both Sides Switch

Two Democratic members of the House taxation committee joined nine Republicans in voting against reporting the moratorium bill out but two Republicans, Reps. Thomas, Marion, and Wilkins, Painesville, voted with administration Democrats and the bill received 13 "aye" votes, the minimum required for it to leave the committee.

Rep. P. J. Dunn (D) Strasburg, consistently opposed the measure in committee and on the second roll call, Rep. Thomas Christy (D) Monroe co. switched over and voted with Dunn against it.

Pressure was brought to bear on Christy to vote for the bill on the first roll call; he revealed in explaining why he changed his attitude. He decided that the moratorium "is an experiment and I think it is time to stop experimenting," he said.

When the measure lacked only one vote of being reported out, Rep. Wilkins, who had not answered the roll call, announced he would vote "yes" to get it out on the floor of the house but he reserved the right to vote against it there.

Highlights of the moratorium which Rep. Frank R. Uible, Cleveland, the Democratic floor leader, introduced at Governor Davey's request, include:

A political subdivision may postpone in the years 1935 and 1936 the payment of the principal of bonds of any issue where the legislative authority of such subdivision by majority vote find that the subdivision will be unable to meet the principal payments on its bonds coming due in the years 1935 and 1936 and continue to operate its essential functions of government.

Bases for Petition

After such resolution is adopted it shall be made the basis of a petition to the common pleas court of the county in which the subdivision will be unable to meet court approval for postponement of principal payments on bonds.

It shall then be the duty of the court to determine whether or not the subdivision can continue to operate its essential functions of government and at the same time meet the principal payments on its bonded indebtedness.

If the court finds it cannot, then the court may order the bond payments postponed for a fixed period not extending beyond Jan. 1, 1937. With this done, the subdivisions may then divert such funds earmarked for bond principal payments as they require for essential government operations.

Searing meat will not hold the juices in, as was formerly believed, but causes greater shrinkage and loss of more fat and moisture, states Marion Pfund of the New York State College of Home Economics.

Have You Tried These Two Good Puddings?

Delicious for Dessert with Lunch or Dinner and with Sauce or Cream on Top

This pudding is called Butter-scotch Nut Pudding; to make it use one half cup quick cooking tapioca; one half teaspoon salt; three cups hot water; four tablespoons butter; one half cup brown sugar; three fourths teaspoon vanilla; one and one half cups dates chopped; one and one half cups chopped nuts. Combine tapioca, salt and hot water and cook about fifteen minutes or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Melt the butter, add sugar and stir until melted. Add to tapioca mixture, then flavoring and dates and pour into a casserole rubbed with shortening. Bake at moderate temperature, 350 degrees F., forty-five to sixty minutes. After removing from oven stir in the nuts. Serve in sherbet glasses topped with cream.

Banana Pudding

Two bananas; one fourth pound thin vanilla wafers; one and one fourth cups scalded milk; one fourth cup sugar three tablespoons flour; two egg yolks; one fourth cup cold milk; one half teaspoon vanilla. Mix sugar and flour together, add cold milk and cook in the double boiler until thickened (about twenty minutes). Remove from heat and add vanilla. Meanwhile rub a casserole with shortening, and lay in the bottom enough wafers to cover; cover this with sliced bananas, repeat with wafers and bananas again, with a final layer of wafers. Pour over this the cooked sauce; cover the top with a meringue made with 2 egg whites beaten stiff, four tablespoons sugar, all beaten together until like marshmallow. Brown in the oven at 300 degrees F., moderate, for ten to fifteen minutes.

Meat Balls With Tomato and Mushroom Sauce

Simple Meat Dishes for Family Dinners; Vegetables Cooked With Meat for Flavor

To make the good combination of meat balls and a vegetable sauce, buy two pounds round steak or use the same amount of pork and veal ground together; one half cup cracker crumbs; two eggs beaten; two teaspoons salt; one fourth teaspoon pepper; one bay leaf; one tablespoon chopped onion. Mix all together and shape into balls the size of an egg; roll in flour, and brown in a little fat in a frying pan. Then place in a casserole, add the bay leaf and pour over a sauce made of the following:

Two cups tomato juice; one small onion chopped; two tablespoons butter; one small can mushrooms; one cup cooked mushrooms. To make this sauce, melt the butter, add chopped onions and brown. Strain this and add the tomato juice and mushrooms. Bake one and a half hours in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, F.

Ham Hawaiian
One slice smoked ham about one half inch thick; four medium sized sweet potatoes; one can sliced pineapple; ground cloves; dry mustard; brown sugar. Place the ham in a casserole and sprinkle lightly with the cloves, mustard and brown sugar. Lay the pineapple slices over this; pare and cut the sweet potatoes lengthwise, dip in melted fat and lay on the pineapple and around the ham. Pour pineapple juice over this to the depth of one half inch. Set in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., and bake one and three-fourths hours.

Veal Cutlets Casserole
Use slices of the veal from the leg cut, about one half inch thick. Wipe with a damp cloth, remove bone and skin and cut in pieces suitable for serving. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dip in cracker crumbs, beaten egg and cracker crumbs and saute in hot fat until golden brown. Place in a casserole and add enough milk to cover the bottom of the casserole. Bake at 350 degrees F., about one hour.

Baked Spare Ribs
This is really a one-dish dinner. Use spare ribs, as many as needed for serving, wipe with damp cloth, season with salt and pepper and place in the bottom of the roasting pan. Cover with sauerkraut and pared potatoes, seasoned with salt and pepper. Set cover on roaster and bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees F., for about two hours; longer if the meat is a larger piece. Baste frequently with the juices in the pan.

A Good Sauce for Cake, Fruit or Pudding

One half cup sugar; one fourth cup water; eight marshmallows cut in small pieces; one egg white beaten stiff; one drop of oil of peppermint flavoring; a little green coloring. Boil the sugar and water until syrupy; then add marshmallows, blend and fold in the egg white, add flavoring and coloring. Beat well, let chill thoroughly.

Ownership of probably half of the real estate in Chicago, measured by value, was transferred during the depression because of foreclosure of other debt proceeds—Homer Hoyt, University of Illinois, according to a study by Chicago.

GROWERS FACING FINE PROSPECTS

Legumes and Grass Seed Supplies Low and Much Acreage Is Available

Increased demand for legume and grass seed provides an opportunity worth consideration by those choosing crops for planting on acreage freed by the agricultural adjustment programs. This is the opinion of R. D. Lewis, extension specialist in agronomy for the Ohio State university, who points out that the drought which reduced seed production in 1934 also caused most 1934 grass seedlings to fail or nearly fail.

In addition to the need for seed for restoring meadows and pastures, the government's erosion control projects also will demand large supplies of adapted grass and legume seed. AAA programs encourage greater use of erosion-preventing and soil-improving crops and of meadow and pasture crops. Because reserves of seed for these crops have been reduced to a low point, the freed acreage may be profitably used for seed production, Lewis believes.

Little extra equipment is needed for seed production but special knowledge of growing, harvesting, cleaning, and storing is essential for success. Such information may be obtained from county agricultural agents, the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service, or the United States Department of Agriculture.

In Ohio there is opportunity for production of alfalfa seed, particularly of improved varieties such as Hardigan, Ontario Variegated, and Grimm. Condition of clover and timothy meadows indicates that for the coming year the coming few years growers of timothy, red clover, alsike clover, and mammoth clover seeds may expect a strong demand.

These crops may be planted on contracted or shifted acreage under provisions of all adjustment contracts.

Have You Tried These Two Good Puddings?

This pudding is called Butter-Scotch Nut Pudding; to make it use one half cup quick cooking tapioca; one half teaspoon salt; three cups hot water; four tablespoons butter; one half cup brown sugar; three fourths teaspoon vanilla; one and one half cups dates chopped; one and one half cups chopped nuts. Combine tapioca, salt and hot water and cook about fifteen minutes or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Melt the butter, add sugar and stir until melted. Add to tapioca mixture, then flavoring and dates and pour into a casserole rubbed with shortening. Bake at moderate temperature, 350 degrees F., forty-five to sixty minutes. After removing from oven stir in the nuts. Serve in sherbet glasses topped with cream.

Banana Pudding

Two bananas; one fourth pound thin vanilla wafers; one and one fourth cups scalded milk; one fourth cup sugar three tablespoons

flour; two egg yolks; one fourth cup cold milk; one half teaspoon vanilla. Mix sugar and flour together, add cold milk and cook in the double boiler until thickened (about twenty minutes). Remove from heat and add vanilla. Meanwhile rub a casserole with shortening, and lay in the bottom enough wafers to cover; cover this with sliced bananas, repeat with wafers and bananas again, with a final layer of wafers. Pour over this the cooked sauce; cover the top with a meringue made with 2 egg whites beaten stiff, four tablespoons sugar, all beaten together until like marshmallow. Brown in the oven at 300 degrees F., moderate, for ten to fifteen minutes.

Meat Balls With Tomato and Mushroom Sauce

Simple Meat Dishes for Family Dinners; Vegetables Cooked With Meat for Flavor

To make the good combination of meat balls and a vegetable sauce, buy two pounds round steak or use the same amount of pork and veal ground together; one half cup cracker crumbs; two eggs beaten; two teaspoons salt; one fourth teaspoon pepper; one bay leaf; one tablespoon chopped onion. Mix all together and shape into balls the size of an egg; roll in flour, and brown in a little fat in a frying pan. Then place in a casserole, add the bay leaf and pour over a sauce made of the following:

Two cups tomato juice; one small onion chopped; two tablespoons butter; one small can mushrooms; one cup cooked mushrooms. To make this sauce, melt the butter, add chopped onions and brown. Strain this and add the tomato juice and mushrooms. Bake one and a half hours in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, F.

Ham Hawaiian

One slice smoked ham about one half inch thick; four medium sized sweet potatoes; one can sliced pineapple; ground cloves; dry mustard; brown sugar. Place the ham in a casserole and sprinkle lightly with the cloves, mustard and brown sugar. Lay the pineapple slices over this; pare and cut the sweet potatoes lengthwise, dip in melted fat and lay on the pineapple and around the ham. Pour pineapple juice over this to the depth of one half inch. Set in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., and bake one and three-fourths hours.

Veal Outlets Casserole

Use slices of the veal from the leg cut, about one half inch thick. Wipe with a damp cloth, remove bone and skin and cut in pieces suitable for serving. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dip in cracker crumbs, beaten egg and cracker crumbs and saute in hot fat until golden brown. Place in a casserole and add enough milk to cover the bottom of the casserole. Bake at 350 degrees F., about one hour.

Baked Spare Ribs

This is really a one-dish dinner. Use spare ribs, as many as needed for serving, wipe with damp cloth, season with salt and pepper and place in the bottom of the roasting pan. Cover with sauerkraut and pared potatoes, seasoned with salt and pepper. Set cover on roaster and bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees F., for about two hours; longer if the meat is a larger piece. Baste frequently with the juices in the pan.

A Good Sauce for Cake, Fruit or Pudding

One half cup sugar; one fourth cup water; eight marshmallows cut in small pieces; one egg white beaten stiff; one drop of oil of peppermint flavoring; a little green coloring.

Boil the sugar and water until syrupy; then add marshmallows, blend and fold in the egg white, add flavoring and coloring. Beat well, let chill thoroughly.

Ownership of probably half of the real estate in Chicago, measured by value, was transferred during the depression because of foreclosure of other debt proceeds—Homer Hoyt, University of Chicago, according to a study by Chicago.

Legumes and Grass Seed Supplies Low and Much Acreage Is Available

Increased demand for legume and grass seed provides an opportunity worth consideration by those choosing crops for planting on acreage freed by the agricultural adjustment programs.

This is the opinion of R. D. Lewis, extension specialist in agronomy for the Ohio State university who points out that the drought which reduced seed production in 1934 also caused most 1934 grass seedlings to fail or nearly fail.

In addition to the need for seed for restoring meadows and pastures, the government's erosion control projects also will demand large supplies of adapted grass and legume seed.

AAA programs encourage greater use of erosion-preventing and soil-improving crops and of meadow and pasture crops. Because reserves of seed for these crops have been reduced to a low point, the freed acreage may be profitably used for seed production, Lewis believes.

Little extra equipment is needed for seed production but special knowledge of growing, harvesting, cleaning, and storing is essential for success. Such information may be obtained from county agricultural agents, the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service, or the United States Department of Agriculture.

In Ohio there is opportunity for production of alfalfa seed, particularly of improved varieties such as Hardigan, Ontario Variegated, and Grimm. Condition of clover and timothy meadows indicates that for the coming few years growers of timothy, red clover, alsike clover, and mammoth clover seeds may expect a strong demand.

These crops may be planted on contracted or shifted acreage under provisions of all adjustment contracts.

Most of Wheat Crop In Middle West Destroyed As Damage Continues

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 12.—One of the most severe dust storms in the history of the south-west plains area receded eastward today, its path marked by serious crop destruction and human suffering in a half dozen states.

While the clouds of choking dust reached as far east as the Ohio valley and south into Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee, the damage from yesterday's storm was the greatest in south-western Kansas, the Texas panhandle, southeastern Colorado and northwestern Oklahoma.

Wheat, the "pay crop" of the southwest, suffered irreparable loss, surveys showed. Most of Oklahoma's best wheat crop has been destroyed, according to Harry B. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture. An $18,000,000 wheat crop loss was reported in estimates from the Texas panhandle. Severe losses

NATURAL LAXATIVE FOOD WINS NATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Helps Millions to Regular Habits

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is one of the most popular laxative foods in the country today. Millions have found it thoroughly satisfactory for correcting constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

In addition to its popular approval, ALL-BRAN has been accepted by science. Research shows it offers mild "bulk" to aid elimination. Also vitamin B and iron.

The American Medical Association Committee on Foods has granted Kellogg's ALL-BRAN its Seal of Acceptance. This delicious cereal is also approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN forms a soft mass which gently clears out the intestinal wastes. More effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down in the body.

Isn't this food better than patent medicines? Unlike cathartics, it remains effective with continued use. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. ALL-BRAN is much more satisfactory than part-bran products. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Brotherhood Men Hunt Hoover for Horse Theft

Trinity Lutheran brotherhood's regular session held last evening in the parish house in E. Mound-st was one of more than usual interest as was attested by the number of men in attendance.

After the regular business routine, the second reading of the revised Constitution and by-laws occurred in Kansas, where the wheat crop was estimated at 47 per cent of normal.

Activities Halted Normal activities were suspended in parts of Kansas, Colorado and Texas while the billowing clouds halted traffic and limited visibility to a few hundred feet. Residents of many darkened communities resorted to dust masks as a protection for their lungs. At Austin, Texas, state senators conducted a session wearing masks.

Schools remained closed in the western Kansas storm area, and the threat of "dust pneumonia" kept the schools closed in sections of Arkansas.

The storm served to accelerate an exodus of families from the marginal lands of Oklahoma, New Mexico and one county in Kansas. Recurring dust storms have driven 100 families from Texas, Okla. in the last month to search for homes elsewhere.

Rain and snow served to quell the rampaging dust in western Iowa, Nebraska and parts of Colorado yesterday. Crops in the northwestern states likewise had beneficial rains.

In the area about Garden City, Kan., kept in total darkness for 48 hours while the dust storm raged, schools remained closed today, but railroad and transcontinental bus lines were gradually resuming regular schedules.

Doors of motion picture houses had to be closed and admit no one after the performance started. Otherwise it would have been impossible for the audience to have seen the screen because of flying dirt.

Trains Blocked Trains became blocked by dirt drifts at various points in southern Kansas, but today all were again running on time. Highways were in fair condition despite the heavy dirt drifts. None of the roads was impassable today, although it was necessary to remove huge drifts.

Washington Merry-go-round

is too recent to have been transcribed.

The furniture, as well as the books in his office must remain undisturbed. He moves about the room unguided, and expects to find each chair in the same place and the free areas of the room always the same.

A Canadian, visiting Gore's office recently, remarked that he found one book there which he had not seen in any other office in the Capitol—the Bible.

Shock

Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce is also a leading water power magnate. But he was a bitter disappointment to Republican members of the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

The big business chief appeared before that committee to give his views on the utility holding corporation bill, pet project of the President.

All other power witnesses had heaped fire and brimstone on the measure because of its provision requiring the dissolution of holding companies within a period of five years.

Harriman, while urging certain modifications, expressed no objection to the five year death sentence.

Republican members of the committee, who have been waging bitter war on the measure, were so outraged at this "apostasy" they literally spluttered.

Ohio's Cooper, New Jersey's Wolferton and Connecticut's Merritt raged and fumed. But the quiet-spoken Harriman calmly stuck by his guns.

Peace Lobbyist

Friends of Jeannette Rankin, who see her darting about the corridors of the Capitol, say she is having even more effect on legislation today than when she was a member of the House, the first woman to sit in Congress.

She frankly calls herself a lobbyist for peace.

There is no measure dealing with war or war materials on which Miss Rankin is not well informed.

She cannot go on the floor of the House, but she makes use of coaching members who come off the floor for her advice.

was given and will be up for action of the brotherhood at the next session.

The lunch committee, headed by Ed Schreiner, warmed up the inner man with a liberal and tasty service of chili con carne, C. C. Schwartz being the chief caterer.

Mock Trial Held As entertainment for the evening, a mock trial was staged by the members whose names begin with the letters "G" to "K" inclusive.

The officers of the court were: H. H. Groce, judge; Hillard Gehres, clerk of courts; J. H. Helwagen, court bailiff; C. W. Helvering, sheriff and R. D. Good, deputy sheriff.

Attorneys for plaintiff were Harry W. Heffner and K. J. Herrmann; for defense George C. Griffith and J. D. Hummel.

The style of the case was: Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Brotherhood versus Wayne A. Hoover; charge that of horse stealing, William G. Koch, being the prosecuting witness.

The whole proceeding was a travesty and created much merriment for the interested audience. Immediately after sentence of the court was pronounced upon the culprit, all lights went out and the prisoner escaped and is still at large, so it might be well to advise your farmer friends and horsemen that "it is always too late to lock the barn after the horse is stolen."

The next program of the series will be put on by the members whose names begin with "L" to "R" inclusive, with G. J. Lampl in charge, the date being May 9th.

OUR YESTERDAYS When Flapper Craze Struck U.S., Bringing on Wave of Bobbed Hair

Left, Clara Bow as flapper girl; top, Harry Leon Wilson; right, F. Scott Fitzgerald.

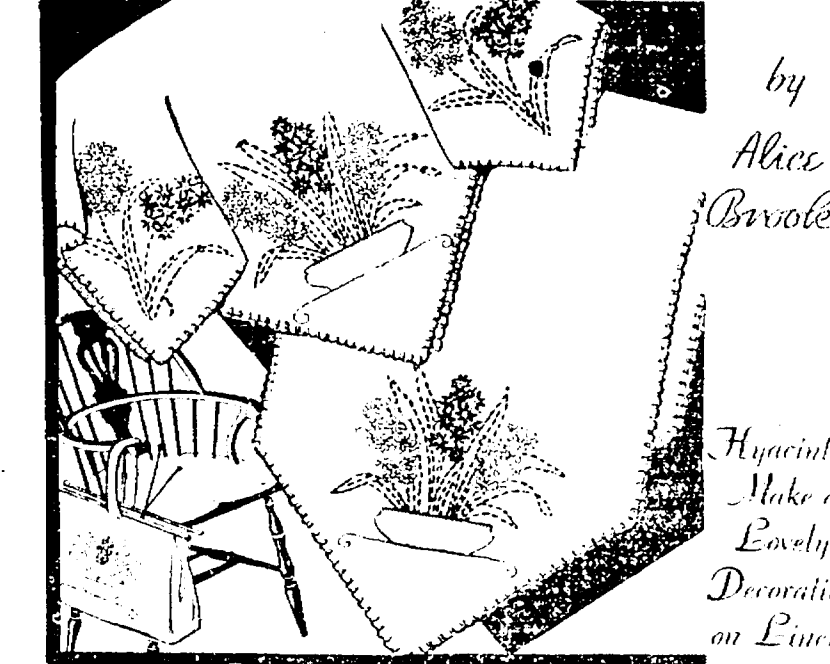

THE WORD "flapper" has been used in the English language since late in the eighteenth century. But it was not until about 1912 that the word became a popular byword in the United States. From 1912 until about 1920 it was common usage to describe as a flapper a certain type of girl who bobbed her hair, chewed gum, smoked cigarettes and otherwise defied conventions. The word was used many times in Harry Leon Wilson's "Bunker Bean", and Francis Scott Fitzgerald's "Flappers and Philosophers" had much to do with popularizing it. At one time Clara Bow was regarded as the "flapper girl" of the screen. The term originated in England, where it is used to describe a young partridge or duck.

DIRIGIBLES BUILT ON PLAN OF SUSPENSION BRIDGE SEEN AS SOLUTION TO NAVY AIR NEED

New Construction Plan Is To Be Tested In Nation In Short Time

By LEON W. SHLOSS
WASHINGTON, April 12—The dirigible, as a war machine of aggression or defense, is only beginning its career, rather than finishing it.

This is the consensus of opinion in official and military circles here and in aviation manufacturing quarters throughout the United States.

It is generally agreed, however, that sweeping changes in design are essential before the airship can become as useful for military purposes as it has been successful in the commercial field.

These changes, as proposed by one outstanding aircraft construction concern, are being considered by military experts in the light of the prospective demands that will be made on aircraft when, and if, war again engulfs the world.

When the World War started, the development of aircraft was in its infancy. Airplanes were limited in range, slow in speed, and restricted in carrying capacity. The great bombing planes of today, with speeds exceeding 200 miles an hour, weren't even hopes. The strides that have been made in the 17 years intervening is epitomized by the following statement, made before the Federal Aviation Commission by one of America's leading aviation experts:

"An enemy bombing squadron could fly from 1,000 miles away from our seacoast, at a speed exceeding 200 miles an hour, at an altitude exceeding 30,000 feet, and in passin gover New York City could destroy the buildings of lower Manhattan from the Battery for perhaps a mile northward."

A dirigible, or fleet of dirigibles, could transport 20 fighting airplanes each, at 100 miles per hour, for 12,000 miles, without refueling. These dirigibles could be protected from attack by long-range rapid-fire guns, of larger and more deadly calibre than attacking planes could possibly carry.

Defensively, these ships, coupled with commercial dirigibles, transformed into fighting units, could not only patrol the areas surrounding the great centers of population, but could establish and maintain a defense line 1,000 miles out to sea. These metamorphosed commercial ships could transport 30 planes each, have a 100 m. p. h. speed, and a cruising altitude of 20,000 feet. Cruising at this altitude, scouting planes could be dropped to contact enemy planes. When such planes were contacted, the scout could direct the dirigible's course to intercept this enemy force. This accomplished, the dirigible could release a fleet of attacking planes.

DOGS ARE DOOMED

QUINCY, Mass. — Despite hundreds of letters petitioning for adoption of four prize-winning Boston terriers condemned to death in the will of their late owner, Mrs. Mabel A. Roman, the dogs will be executed as soon as the executor of the will, Frank H. Mason, brother of Mrs. Roman, arrives from the West Indies.

MODERN VALJEAN

BUCHAREST—A jobless workman, Joseph Baitz, was sentenced to six years hard labor for having broken into a farm-kitchen and stolen a loaf of bread. This case, reminiscent of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables", Senator Dimitrie R. Ioanidesco to propose amendment of the Rumanian penal code. It was rejected.

Yarn, Peach Stones

A non-stretch mercerized boucle yarn and a few lacquered peach-stone button ornaments provide the chic effect of this two-piece knitted costume.

OUR YESTERDAYS—When Nazimova Made Her Debut, Proving Sensation of the Stage

OUTSTANDING among the theatrical idols of 1906 and ensuing years was Mme. Alla Nazimova, Russian actress, who won fame and fortune in the United States. Many adults now living can recall the sensation Nazimova caused when she made her English-speaking debut in New York City, early in 1906, after only five months' study of the language. Born in Russia and educated in Switzerland, she received her early training for the stage at a school in Moscow. She appeared as a leading lady in Russia in 1904, and in 1905 she visited London and New York in Russian plays. Her success in America was almost instantaneous, mainly as a result of her interpretations of Hedda Tesman in "Hedda Gabler" and Nora in "The Doll's House". Later she enjoyed a brief career in the movies and then returned to the New York stage to win more laurels as a dramatic artist.

SIAMESE TWINS TO APPEAR AT GRAND

Everyone has heard of the "Siamese Twins". A nationwide public interest in them began in the early part of the nineteenth century when the famous twins, Chang and Eng, born joined together were first presented under the banner of P. T. Barnum. Since then, four or five other sets of twins of similar character have appeared, and in each successive pair, interest and curiosity grew. It is in the appearance of Violet and Daisy Hilton, "San Antonio's Siamese Twins", that public interest reaches its height.

The inseparable union of these two lovable young girls, vivacious, engaging, and charming, attaches an immense interest to their appearance at The Grand on Sunday where, with their own orchestra of 13 entertaining artists they will present an example of their unusual talents. The Hilton Sisters will play, sing, dance and direct their orchestra in their own inimitable way.

High school graduates, talented musicians and accomplished entertainers, Daisy and Violet Hilton, although born joined together, each has her own likes and dislikes, and frequently they are not at all alike. Yet nature in joining them together for life, forced on them the need for compromise, for consideration and thoughtfulness. The result—never a disagreement. No two girls could be happier or more contented with their lot than Violet and Daisy Hilton.

SNAKE IN CLASS

FORT MORGAN, Colo.—Young musicians in a band class at a school here were thrown into a furor when a two-foot rattlesnake dropped into their midst and glided down the center aisle of the class room. Walter C. Butler, the bandmaster, killed the snake with a chair, and members of the class picked up their scattered instruments and continued practice.

A larger number of farmers borrowed from their cooperatively operated production credit associations in the first two weeks in March than in any other two-week period since their organization, according to FCA.

"For frying, it's vital to use digestible Crisco," says Mrs. Quinn

CRISCO-fried foods aren't greasy—they digest quickly

Mrs. Mary Quinn keeps house for her son, her sister and a brother who travels a great deal. "My brother James eats fried foods when he is home because I always fry with Crisco," says Mrs. Quinn. "For the past 5 years I have been using Crisco steadily for frying, biscuits and pie crust. I feel responsible for giving my family digestible food. Last winter my son was ill and the doctor warned him to be careful of his digestion, but he never had any trouble with my Crisco-fried potatoes!"

TASTY TOAST

this is so easy to make, it flies to the table!

- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups left-over minced ham
- 1/2 teaspoon table mustard
- 6 slices bread
- 4 to 6 tablespoons Crisco for frying

Beat eggs lightly, add milk and salt. Dip thick slices of bread in mixture. Melt plenty of wholesome, digestible Crisco in skillet, when hot add bread and fry until toasty brown on both sides. Mix minced ham with mustard and spread over surface of toast. Place in hot oven long enough to heat thoroughly. Garnish with currant jelly just before serving.

CHEESE PUFFS

a luncheon treat that's light and digestible

- 1 cup grated cheese
- 1/4 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 paprika
- 1 egg
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Crisco for deep frying

Separate egg. Mix crumbs with yolk. Add cheese and seasonings. Fold in stiffly beaten egg-white. Shape into 10 balls and roll in fine dry bread crumbs. Drop into deep digestible Crisco heated to 375°F. (or until a piece of bread will brown in 60 seconds). Fry until golden brown, drain on absorbent paper. Serve with strips of grilled bacon. These cheese puffs are so light and crispy when fried in Crisco, the digestible fat. Remember, too, that Crisco can be used over and over again for frying—it keeps digestible.

All Measurements Level—Crisco is the registered trademark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

HINTS ON DEEP-FRYING

—with Crisco, the quick-digesting fat

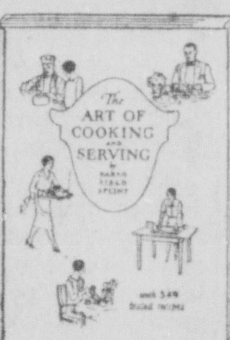

You don't need a big deep-frying kettle when you use sweet digestible Crisco. Use a deep saucepan.

You don't need pounds and pounds of Crisco. Fill the saucepan 2/3 full.

Never heat Crisco until it smokes. In the old-fashioned way a fat that smokes easily is actually decomposing. Crisco does not smoke at proper frying temperatures. It keeps digestible.

Don't throw that Crisco away that you've used for a deep-frying. Strain it back into a can, and use that same Crisco for frying over and over again. Crisco stays digestible!

WHERE HONOR IS DUE

SELECTION, even specific mention, of any nominees to the Hall of Fame of New York University before final choice may be contrary to accepted usage, but perhaps certain exceptions can be made. Reference, kindly of course, might be made to the nomination among seventy-six of William Holmes McGuffey, author of the school "readers" of a day which ended more than sixty years ago, and to John Rogers, beloved by our grandparents for his "groups" which no properly constituted American family was without—in the front parlor bay window.

Both "readers" and "group" typify a distinct era in American civilization. McGuffey readers trained young minds to literary appreciation. Rogers groups performed a similar office for plastic Art—spelled with a capital letter. Neither did a particle of harm to the beneficiaries. Both creators were spurred by the purest motives, not altogether divorced from an implication of gain, of course, but at that not entirely commercial.

Both McGuffey and Rogers were servitors of Art when Art was somewhat in need of such attendants. Broadly speaking, the seventies of the last century was a time of dawning in aesthetics—not always indicative of the perfect noon.

All will not agree with the chaste selections of McGuffey or with "Going to the Sun" as emblematic of art in its most exalted flights or execution, but all nations have their rise and fall—even Rome. To be a good reader of sound if slightly demodé literature is no disgrace, and to respect Mr. Rogers does not necessarily place him with Michael Angelo and Phidias. But we hope both the old boys "make" the Hall of Fame. They belong there, if for only historical reasons.

PENNY DREADFULS

WE ARE MORE grieved than angered by the demand of Chairman Prall of the Communications Commission for the elimination of "blood and thunder" programs from entertainment for children and by particular denunciation of novels of the "Dead-Eye Dick" and "The Boy Smuggler" variety.

Chairman Prall, we feel sure, is not an authority on "penny dreadfuls." We doubt very much that to him "Dead-Eye Dick" is more than a name. What does he know of the career, the adventures and the triumphs of this invincible and romantic figure? What reason has he to believe that the reading of this thrilling story would produce an injurious effect upon the youthful mind?

In fact, the "penny dreadful" is an inspiring literary product which invariably has as its theme the triumph of the champions of righteousness over the forces of evil and is an exaltation of virtue.

No less discerning a critic than Gilbert Keith Chesterton once referred to its most conspicuous characteristics as being as pure as the thunder of God and the blood of men.

NO JOY FOR SNOOPERS

A MONTH AGO it seemed most unlikely that the "pink slip" publicity feature of the income tax law of 1934 could be knocked out. Yet within two weeks of March 15, the date on which all returns had to be filed, the house had voted overwhelmingly for repeal and the senate later expunged this publicity by a vote of 53 to 16.

Happily congress has acted in time to prevent any individual income figures from becoming public property, as the pink slips could not have been classified and made available much before June 1.

Here is an instance in which a healthy public sentiment was apprised and acted upon speedily by the national lawmakers.

The fishing is good, says the president from the Nourmahal. We are glad something is good.

General Johnson may try for a seat in the senate. Obviously, he and Father Coughlin belong there with Huey.

Representative Tinkham says the Japanese are as civilized as ourselves and the very latest in statistics shows that we lead the world in the production of criminals.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

CHAPTER 33

CONSELLO'S wish to understand Louise L'ville was coming true. She was called for a tryout. Renaldo, the dance director, began working with her to teach her the routine and to help her make good her bluff.

Down front in the dark house Goldberg dropped in to watch. He sat down beside Doug and rubbed his hands together.

"What do you think of this good idea of mine, Douglas? I got a fortune in this gypsy girl. Why if Louise was ever out for just one night and this gypsy went on in her place—"

"My Lord, but I hold my breath just to think of it. But I can't do nothing about it. Louise is a swell dancer but she ain't in it with this gypsy and besides Louise has got such a contract for the rest of the season that I couldn't break it and Goldie has never yet been accused of being unfair, but of course, if she was suddenly to be very sick or to be going to Europe for her health or if Stewart took a wild notion in his noodle that he didn't like her no more—why, you never can tell what might happen!"

He leaned back in the seat and watched the gypsy girl work under Renaldo's direction and he was amazed at the change he saw in her work and the eagerness with which she worked.

"Do you remember, Douglas, that when we first got the kid up on the stage she was a wash-out? She was frightened maybe of the dark house, for now I have yet to see anybody dance as she does."

Doug listened, said little, and watched the girl on the stage working out her ambitions and he wondered at the outcome.

It was not long before L'ville found out that the gypsy was working with Renaldo every morning. She went to Goldberg.

"Goldie, I want to know why you're letting that gypsy understudy me? There was no indirectness about Louise when she wanted something."

"Well now, Lou, you mustn't get so upset and angry about it this early in the morning. You've got to have an understudy, don't you?"

"He cleared his throat. 'Why, I thought you'd be pleased.'"

"Pleased as hell! I've got an understudy."

"It's a swell compliment, ain't it, to have two good dancers understudying you at the same time?"

"My dear Mr. Goldberg, I'm not as dumb as I look. You're doing this for some reason and I want to know why."

"Well, Lou, you yourself got to admit that the gypsy girl is the biggest hit we've ever had. Of course you're not as dumb as you look—I mean, you're bright enough to figure this out for yourself. Supposin' you was in an accident and got your leg broke—or supposin' you were sick, why you can see what it would be for the show to have the gypsy step in."

on into your place." He leaned back nervously.

"And what would it be for me?" Louise shouted the words.

"Now, Lou, keep calm and cool like me. I'll admit she couldn't do your dances so well and that she ain't as pretty as you, but can't you see, Lou, you're pretty and you're blonde, but you ain't got nothing about you that gets people's imagination. Now that gypsy, she got everybody going and even I don't understand it."

"You've all gone crazy," Louise muttered. "You forget that I was voted the prettiest show girl in New York and that I won the Miss America prize—that was when Stewart first met me. I've had artists from all over the world come just to paint the color of my hair. No bleaches for this baby. Duncan Trelle said it was the color of pure gold—they used that on those cigarette ads. I've got plenty of 'it' only you're too blind to see it. You're just giving me a rotten deal because I'm a good fellow and don't complain."

Goldie coughed.

"This doesn't mean anything, Lou. You got a swell contract and we couldn't break it—and we don't want to—"

he added, "but we got to look out for ourselves and when we got a gold mine staring us in the face we do something about it, don't we?"

"Who's the we?"

"Why me and—why me—and my staff!" he finished.

"Who's behind the gypsy?"

Inwardly Goldie groaned.

"Why—she doesn't need anybody behind her. I saw her dance and right away I seen what a wonder she is."

"You're lying, Goldie. She danced perfectly rotten until the first night she went on and you know it. Who's backing her?"

"Nobody, nobody, I told you. Do you want to get me out of my good temper and start being cross with you?"

Louise sighed. She raised languid blue eyes to him.

"Of course, I don't want you to be cross with me." She seated herself on the edge of his desk, posing her alken ankles well in his view. She leaned forward and playfully rumpled his hair with her hand. "Goldie, darling, you've always been so sweet and precious to me, won't you just do this one little thing for me?" she wheedled.

Goldie pushed back his chair and smoothed down his hair with a fat stubby hand.

"You—leave me alone. You know I ain't got any use for blondes. You—"

Louise flopped back into the chair. "Good Lord, what a break! No more sex appeal than an oyster on the half shell. If you were human at all—" She sighed again. "Well, Goldie, will you take her off from understudying me?"

"No."

"You sure are giving me the short end of this deal. You seem to forget

Better take a squint at your bank roll and see if you have made a collection of counterfeit $10 bills. Merchants in Circleville and neighboring towns have been warned to be on the lookout for federal reserve notes of this denomination, two counterfeit bills having found their way through business channels to a Wilmington bank recently.

The bills were thoroughly examined and disclosed the fraudulent money as being darker and the engraving lines different from the genuine bills of the same denomination. A distinct contrast in the shades of the Hamilton head were also noted.

Having had but little personal experience in handling ten-dollar Williams, either genuine or spurious, the information I gathered on the subject comes second-hand.

BIG DAY FOR HOUNDS

'Coun hunters of this section will be interested to know that northern and southern Ohio sportsmen are uniting in one of the most important sport events of the year, the state's July con-hound field trial, to be held at Trotter's Country club, near West Union, in Adams county.

Several dogs from this and adjoining counties will likely be entered in the meet, which boasts a guaranteed purse of $300. This gives promise of attracting many of the best dogs in the state.

GOOD PROSPECTS

Unless the fruit buds are killed later on, the largest fruit crop in recent years is seen by prominent fruit growers. Not only are apple, and other buds of a more or less hardy nature, in good condition, but the peach, pear, cherry and other buds seem to be in first class condition.

Fruit buds are usually killed before the first of April, according to fruit growers, but in some instances cold weather after the buds have developed and the small fruit has appeared and has taken heavy toll of the fruit crop.

While there are not many commercial orchards in Pickaway-co. there are thousands of acres in counties to the south of us devoted to fruit raising of all kinds. Where many residents of this county go to purchase their winter's supply of fruit for canning and storage.

Most of us "hill-billies," however, are interested in the blackberry crop, classed as the poor man's fruit, but it is too early in the season to make any predic-

Editorial Of The Day

CLOTHES MAKE THE WOMAN (Ohio State Journal)

While no one has questioned the accuracy of the poet's observation that the arrival of spring turned the young man's thought toward, it seems probably that the versifier fell asleep in his bed of violets, else he would have added further "and girls start thinking about new Easter dresses and bonnets."

Every season brings its new dresses and styles, but spring somehow seems to outshine them all. There's a sense of relief in being able to put aside the heavy garments of winter and enjoying the new freedom of the light colorful garments. And there's a belief, which amounts to a religion, that one must have a new outfit for Easter.

It's a good idea, even if it is expensive. After all there's no more pleasing sight than women and girls attractive and colorfully dressed. They walk with the pride and dignity of queens, and most of them are a great deal more beautiful. Their hats may be funny or cute, but they're interesting. The Easter bonnet and in fact the entire Easter outfit is a great institution.

They make life more interesting.

that I'm the star of your old show. You let that gypsy stand in the wings and stare at me out of those eyes of hers until I'm a nervous wreck and then you complain about my drinking. You men, you're all alike, gone plain nuts about her and there's no comparison. Doug Parker used to be a good guy and now he's head over heels in love with her and follows her around like a puppy. It's not he that's giving her the clothes either. Doug would be in the poor-house in a week. I wonder how Doug gets all the time to run around with her when he's Stewart's secretary—" Louise paused. She stared at Goldie wide-eyed. "Goldie, it's not Stewart."

"Not Stewart what—you don't talk sense!" Goldie was thinking fast. "It's not Stewart that's backing the gypsy?" she asked.

"Aw now, of course, it ain't!" He was in a tough spot and knew it. "And anyway, Lou, you got to look at these things more impersonal. You can't afford to be jealous of the kid. You can't afford to care who's giving her her clothes and swell jewelry. What you got to look to is your own work. I wasn't going to tell you but you forced me into it—you've danced rotten in the last week. Where's your pep, girl? Where's that 'it' you're always boasting about? You know you ain't big enough to carry this show the way it should be carried and I told Stewart that in the first place, but then you can't argue with Stewart—not over a woman. If you only knew it, it's the gypsy and her act that's making this season worth saving. Now that I've told you this you can forget it—but, you stop your fussing about the gypsy, get me?"

"Is that so? You can't talk to me this way and get by with it! Danced rotten, did I? Well, we'll see what Stewart says about that! You think I'm not big enough to carry this bun show

WHERE HONOR IS DUE
SELECTION, even specific mention, of any nominees to the Hall of Fame of New York University before final choice may be contrary to accepted usage, but perhaps certain exceptions can be made.
Reference, kindly of course, might be made to the nomination among seventy-six of William Holmes McGuffey, author of the school "readers" of a day which ended more than sixty years ago, and to John Rogers, beloved by our grandparents for his "groups" which no properly constituted American family was without—in the front parlor bay window.
Both "readers" and "group" typify a distinct era in American civilization. McGuffey readers trained young minds to literary appreciation. Rogers groups performed a similar office for plastic Art—spelled with a capital letter. Neither did a particle of harm to the beneficiaries. Both creators were spurred by the purest motives, not altogether divorced from an implication of gain, of course, but at that not entirely commercial.
Both McGuffey and Rogers were servitors of Art when Art was somewhat in need of such attendants. Broadly speaking, the seventies of the last century was a time of dawning in aesthetics—not always indicative of the perfect noon.
All will not agree with the classic selections of McGuffey or with
"Going to the Sun" as emblematic of art in its most exalted flights or execution, but all nations have their rise and fall—even Rome. To be a good reader of sound if slightly demodé literature is no disgrace, and to respect Mr. Rogers does not necessarily place him with Michael Angelo and Phidias. But we hope both the old boys "make" the Hall of Fame. They belong there, if for only historical reasons.

PENNY DREADFULS
WE ARE MORE grieved than angered by the demand of Chairman
Prall of the Communications Commission for the elimination of "blood and thunder" programs from entertainment for children and by particular denunciation of novels of the "Dead-Eye Dick" and "The Boy Smuggler" variety.
Chairman Prall, we feel sure, is not an authority on "penny dreadfuls." We doubt very much that to him "Dead-Eye Dick" is more than a name. What does he know of the career, the adventures and the triumphs of this invincible and romantic figure? What reason has he to believe that the reading of this thrilling story would produce an injurious effect upon the youthful mind?
In fact, the "penny dreadful" is an inspiring literary product which invariably has as its theme the triumph of the champions of righteousness over the forces of evil and is an exaltation of virtue.
No less discerning a critic than Gilbert Keith Chesterton once referred to its most conspicuous characteristics as being as pure as the thunder of God and the blood of men.

NO JOY FOR SNOOPERS
A MONTH AGO it seemed most unlikely that the "pink slip" publicity feature of the income tax law of 1934 could be knocked out. Yet within two weeks of March 15, the date on which all returns the senate later expunged this publicity by a vote of 53 to 16.

Happily congress has acted in time to prevent any individual income figures from becoming public property, as the pink slips could not have been classified and made available much before June 1.
Here is an instance in which a healthy public sentiment was ap-

with her to teach her the routine and to help her make good her bluff.
Down front in the dark house Goldberg dropped in to watch. He sat down beside Doug and rubbed
his hands together.
"What do you think of this good idea of mine, Douglas? I got a fortune in this gypsy girl. Why if Louise was ever out for just one night and this gypsy went on in her place—He blinked his red eyes
and sighed. "My lord, but I hold my breath just to think of it. But I can't do nothing about it. Louise is a swell dancer but she ain't in it with this gypsy and besides Louise has got such a contract for the rest of the season that I couldn't break
it and Goldie has never yet been accused of being unfair, but of course,
if she was suddenly to be very sick
or to be going to Europe for her health or if Stewart took a wild notion in his noodle that he didn't like her no more—why, you never can tell what might happen." He leaned back in his seat and watched the gypsy girl work under Renaldo's direction and he was amazed at the change he saw in her work and the eagerness with which she worked.
"Do you remember, Douglas, that when we first got the kid up on the stage she was a washout? She was frightened maybe of the dark house,
for now I have yet to see anybody dance as she does."
Doug listened, said little, and watched the girl on the stage working out her ambitions and he wondered at the outcome.
It was not long before Louise found out that the gypsy was working with Renaldo every morning.
She went to Goldberg.
"Goldie, I want to know why you're letting that gypsy understand me? There was no indirectness about Louise when she wanted something."
"Well now, Lou, you mustn't get so upset and angry about it. It's early in the morning. You've got to have an understudy, don't you?"
He cleared his throat. "Why, I thought you'd be pleased."
"Pleased as hell! I've got an un-derstudy!"
"It's a swell compliment, ain't it,
to have two good dancers understanding you at the same time?"
"My dear Mr. Goldberg, I'm not as dumb as I look. You're doing this for some reason and I want to know why."
"Well, Lou, you yourself got to admit that the gypsy girl is the biggest hit we've ever had. Of course you're not as dumb as you look—I mean, you're bright enough to figure this out for yourself. Supposin' you was in an accident and got your leg broken—or supposin' you were sick—
why you can see what it would be for the show to have the gypsy step into your place." He leaned back nervously.
"And what would it be for me?"
Louise shouted the words.
"Now, Lou, keep calm and cool
like me. I'll admit she couldn't do your dances so well and that she ain't as pretty as you, but can't you see, Lou, you're pretty and you're blonde, but you ain't got nothing about you that gets people's imagination. Now that gypsy has got everything going and even I don't understand it!"
"You've all gone crazy," Louise muttered. "You forget that I was voted the prettiest show girl in New York and that I won the Miss America prize—that was when Stewart first met me. He had artists from all over the world come just to paint
the color of my hair. No bleaches for this baby. Duncan Trelle said it was the color of pure gold—they used that on those cigaret ads. I've got plenty of it! Only you're too blind to see it. You're just giving me a rotten deal because I'm a good fellow and don't complain."
Goldie coughed.
"This doesn't mean anything, Lou.
You got a swell contract and we couldn't break it and we don't want to—" he added, "but we got to look out for ourselves and we got a lot of money staring us in the face. We do something about it, don't we?"
"Who's the we?"
"Why me and—why me—and my staff!" He finished.
"Who's behind the gypsy?"
Inwardly Goldie groaned.
"Why—she doesn't need anybody behind her. I saw her dance and right away I seen what a wonder she is."
"You're lying, Goldie. She danced perfectly rotten until the first night
she went on and you know it. Who's backing her?"
"Nobody, nobody. I told you. Do you want to get me out of my good temper and start being cross with you?"
Louise sighed. She raised languid blue eyes to him.
"Of course, I don't want you to be cross with me." She seated herself on the edge of his desk, posing her silk stockings well in his view. She leaned forward and playfully rumpled his hair with her hand. "Goldie, darling, you've always been so sweet and precious to me, won't you just do this one little thing for me?" She whispered.
Goldie pushed back his chair and smoothed down his hair with a fat stubby hand.
"You—you leave me alone. You know I ain't got any use for blondes."
You—
Louise flopped back into the chair.
"Good Lord, what a break! No more sex appeal than an oyster on the half shell. If you were human at all—" She sighed again. "Well, Goldie, will you take her off from understanding me?"
"No."
"You sure are giving me the short end of this deal. You seem to forget tions concerning the prospects for berries.
Ever eat a "real" blackberry pie? If you have, you'll get what I mean when I say that I'd walk more than a mile for one, and take it in preference to the popular cigaret that you are supposed to walk a mile to obtain."

Better take a squint at your bank roll and see if you have made a collection of counterfeit $10 bills. Merchants in Circleville and neighboring towns have been warned to be on the lookout for federal reserve notes of this denomination. Two counterfeit bills having found their way through business channels to a Wilmington bank recently.
The bills were thoroughly examined and disclosed the fraudulent money as being darker and the engraving lines different from the genuine bills of the same denomination. A distinct contrast in the shades of the Hamilton head
were also noted.
Having had but little personal experience in handling ten-dollar

ious, the information I gathered on the subject comes second-handed.

BIG DAY FOR HOUNDS
"Coon hunters of this section

northern and southern Ohio
sportsmen are uniting in one of the most important sport events of the year, the state's July coonhound field trial, to be held at Trotter's Country club, near West
Union, in Adams county.
Several dogs from this and adjoining counties will likely be entered in the meet, which boasts a guaranteed purse of $300. This gives promise of attracting many of the best dogs in the state.

GOOD PROSPECTS
Unless the fruit buds are killed
later on, the largest fruit crop in recent years is seen by prominent fruit growers. Not only are apple and other buds of a more or less hardy nature, in good condition, but the peach, pear, cherry and other buds seem to be in first class condition.
Fruit buds are usually killed
before the first of April, according to fruit growers, but in some instances cold weather after the buds have developed and the small fruit has appeared and has taken heavy toll of the fruit crop.
While there are not many commercial orchards in Pickaway-co.
there are thousands of acres in counties to the south of us devoted to fruit raising of all kinds,
where many residents of this county go to purchase their winter's supply of fruit for canning and storage.
Most of us "hill-billies," however, are interested in the blackberry crop, classed as the poor man's fruit, but it is too early in the season to make any predic-

Editorial Of The Day

While no one has questioned the accuracy of the poet's observation that the arrival of spring turned the young man's thought toward it, seems probable that the ver-
ifier fell asleep in his bed of violets, else he would have added further
"and girls start thinking about new Easter dresses and bonnets." Every season brings its new dresses and styles, but spring
somehow seems to outshine them
all. There's a sense of relief in being able to put aside the heavy garments of winter and enjoying the new freedom of the light colorful garments. And there's a belief, which amounts to a religion,
that one must have a new outfit
for Easter.
It's a good idea, even if it is expensive. After all there's no more pleasing sight than women and girls attractively and colorfully dressed. They walk with the pride and dignity of queens, and most of them are a great deal more beautiful. Their hats may be funny or cute, but they're interesting. The Easter bonnet and in fact the entire Easter outfit is a great interest.
They make life more interesting.

Drama that thunders across the screen with the speed of a runaway locomotive; comedy that fairly crackles with brittle wit;
romance with that unmistakably whimsical flavor of "The Thin Man"—these are the principal elements of "Times Square Lady," fast-moving comedy drama of New York night life that opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre.
Those who are interested in "discovering" new stars for themselves—and who isn't?—will find this photoplay a veritable treasure house. For the cast is largely composed of new stars who seem to be inevitably destined to make motion picture history.
Robert Taylor, the young man who leaped into fame with his portrayal of the young interne in "Society Doctor," has a role in
"Times Square Lady" that stamps
him as a definite runner-up for Clark Gable honors. He gives a dynamic portrayal as a good-natured man of the New York demi-world
who is regenerated by love.
Virginia Bruce, as a young Iowa girl suddenly precipitated into the turmoil of Metropolitan night life,
adds immeasurably to her laurels
and seems certain to attain stardom in her own right.

Poems That Live
ROMANCE
You do not have to see a play
Or read a book or go away
To Spain or France;
No need to wait a lifetime's span
Or join a gypsy caravan
To find romance.
For romance is a flower which blooms
In sunny fields or sunless rooms
With equal grace;
Look deep in eyes of girl or boy,
Read all the wonder there, the joy
Of life's embrace.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

ONLY ONE WENT GAME
OUT of eight players sitting South
in a recent duplicate game, only one went game at 4-Spades doubled by West. In each case the opening lead was the 3 of hearts. Should all have gone game, or did the defense favor
the one who went game?
♠ 7 6 4
♥ K Q 5 2
♦ K J 4 2
♣ 8
♠ K Q 9 5
♥ J 9 8 3
♦ A 5
♣ J 6 3
♠ A J 10 8 3
♥ A 7 4

♣ A K 9 4
Bidding went: South, 1-Spade;
North, 2-Hearts; South, 3-Clubs;
North, 3-Spades; South, 4-Spades;
West doubled.
The opening lead of the 3 of hearts was won with dummy's Q. There is no way the declarer can avoid giving West the Ace of diamonds and 2 spade tricks. If South can avoid giving West an added trump trick
he can go game, but not otherwise.
The fortunate player who went game did so by playing as described below.
Dummy's 7 of spades was led. Declarer's 10 lost to the Q, giving the West's
doubler his first trick. Rather than open a new suit West led his 8 of hearts, losing to declarer's Ace.
The 4 of clubs was led. Dummy's Q won. The 8 of clubs was led back and South was in with his K. He led his only diamond. West's Ace won his second defensive trick. He led the 9 of hearts, losing to dummy's K. The K of diamonds was led. South discarded his 9 of clubs. Dummy's last heart was led and ruffed by South, removing West's last heart,
and making the ninth trick played.
There South had to do a little guessing, and upon the correctness of his surmise depended whether or not he could fulfill his contract.
South guessed that West held another club and the K-9-5 of trumps.
The Ace of clubs was led and held the trick. South still needed two of the three remaining tricks to fulfill his contract.
South led his J of spades and West was in with his K, giving him the third defensive trick, and leaving him
in a hole, as he had to lead from the 9-5 of spades, up to South's A-8, giving the declarer his doubled contract of 4-south.
South played the hand with great skill. He extracted every side exit card from West's hand before leading trumps the second time, so that West could not escape giving South
the last two tricks required for game.
To execute this end play South had to once shorten his trumps, to reduce them to the same length as West's.

STATE AGRONOMIST CHOOSES FERTILIZER FOR CORN CROP

THE "Laxative Question"

DOCTORS SETTLED IT,
LONG AGO.

UNDER the doctor's care,
or in the hospital, you would get a liquid laxative. And the liquid form
is what you would use at home, if
you knew what a doctor knows!

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced doses are the secret of real and safe
relief from constipation.

The right liquid laxative gives
the right kind of help, and the right
amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each
time, you take less.

Once you have experienced this comfort, you will never return to
any form of help that can't be regulated to suit the need.

The liquid laxative generally used
is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and
these are natural laxatives that form
no habit—even with children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will clear up a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. You'll like its taste, and like its action. It's pleasant to take, and won't sicken

you like a violent cathartic.

So, try Syrup Pepsin. Take regulated doses until Nature restores regularity. Those who have made the "liquid test" know why
most doctors favor a liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.
Get a bottle today.

BE CAREFUL

If any laxative makes you
thirsty, affects your appetite,
seems to burn, or requires larger doses than when you first began its use—change to a liquid laxative!

Husband Forgives Wife, Counts Days Until Cell Opens; To Start Anew

By EDWARD S. SULLIVAN

OAKLAND, Cal., April 12.—The
law that justified his killing of the man who wrecked his home has
finally come between Judson C.
Doke and his "White Hibiscus"
wife.

Acquitted of the "unwritten
law" slaying of Lamar Hollings-
head, student-poet-lover of his wife, Doke was in San Quentin Prison today starting a one to ten
year term for embezzlement.

The man who faced the gallows
in two sensational trials at Wood-
land, Cal., and emerged unscathed,
was unable to prove himself innocent of embezzling $16,000 from
the city of San Leandro in his capacity as city milk inspector.

He pleaded guilty to stealing
$16.93 and went to prison.

His wife, frail young Helen Louise Doke, who remained in oc-
clusion during the murder trials,
swear she will stand by him and
be waiting for him when he is released.

"I wrecked Judson's life," she said, "and I will do everything
I can to heal his wound. After that terrible nightmare at Woodland, I thought he would never want to see me again. But he forgave me and we had a second
honeymoon, hiding from the
world, while he was awaiting trial
on this other charge.

"Now they have taken him from
me again, but it will not be for long. When he is free, we will go far away from here and build a new home and a new life for ourselves."

Mrs. Doke, who went to work
in a rug shop to help raise funds
for Doke's defense in the embezzlement trial, said she plans to make her home in Marin County,

near San Quentin.

"We want to be as near to each
other as possible," she said.

"Even though the prison walls
are between us, the thought that
we are only a few miles apart will bear us both up."

The "White Hibiscus" of the
slain poet's passionate love letters
said she does not know whether
she will ever write poetry again.

It was their common interest in poetry that led to their clandestine love idyll which culminated in Doke's shooting Hollingshead in a cabin at Woodland last July.

"There is no poetry in my heart
now," she said. "But there may be again—sometime."

Doke, who maintained that he
was innocent of criminal intent in
the embezzlement, and that the
diverted funds were due him for
extra work, echoed his wife's plan
of rebuilding their lives on his release.

"We belong together," he said,
before he was taken to San Quentin. "Helen could not get along
in the world by herself and I want to be with her, to protect her. In those first weeks in jail at Wood-
land, I thought of divorcing her,
but that's forgotten now. She allowed her reputation to be torn to shreds to save me.

"We'll go away somewhere and
forget all that's happened."

STATE AGRONOMIST CHOOSES FERTILIZER FOR CORN CROP

Salter Says Rates Depend On Soil, Planter and Planting Method

In seasons of normal rainfall
corn responds handsomely to fertilizer treatment on most Ohio

soils, although fertilizer may produce little or no increase in very dry seasons.

Fortunately, fertilizer applied in drouth years remains in the soil and influences subsequent crops, so the investment is not lost.

But, since it can not be predicted whether the season will be dry or wet, the wisest practice
seems to be to apply moderate amounts of fertilizer to corn each year, in the opinion of Robert M.
Salter, chairman of the agronomy
department at the Ohio State university.

Effects Discussed

Beneficial effects of manure on corn, Salter adds, do not seem to be so limited by dry weather as do those of chemical fertilizers. A combination of manure and fertilizer is apt to give excellent returns
in almost any kind of season, he says.

Nowadays corn is fertilized in the hill or in the row rather than by the old broadcast method which has proven comparatively unprofitable.

Judging from field experiments
under his direction Salter says
the best analysis fertilizer for dark colored soils or for manured light colored soils is probably the 9-14-6 except on muck or first bottom lands where an 0-12-12 is better.

On light colored unmanured land the 2-12-6 is apt to give the best returns.

Last year, in spite of the drouth
the average increase from 150 pounds of 2-12-6 in the hill on eight county experiment farms
was 14.3 bushels.

Up to Attachments

Proper amounts per acre, Salter
says, depend on whether the corn is check-planted or drilled, and on the kind of attachment on the planter. If the attachment is of the old type, which does not give good separation between the fertilizer and seed, Salter does not advise using more than 100 pounds an acre in the hill or 150 pounds in the row.

If the new type of attachment
is used, which places the fertilizer
at the side of the seed, more fertilizer can be used, ranging from 125 pounds for the dark colored soils to 200 pounds for the poorer light colored soils
when the seed is checked. For row application to drilled corn these

Husband Forgives Wife, Counts Days Until Cell Opens; To Start Anew

By EDWARD S. SULLIVAN

OAKLAND, Cal., April 12.—The
law that justified his killing of the
man who wrecked his home has
finally come between Judson C.
Doke and his "White Hibiscus"
wife.

Acquitted of the "unwritten
law" slaying of Lamar Hollings-
head, student-poet-lover of his
wife, Doke was in San Quentin
Prison today starting a one to ten
year term for embezzlement.

The man who faced the gallows
in two sensational trials at Wood-
land, Cal., and emerged unscathed,
was unable to prove himself innocent of embezzling $1,600 from
the city of San Leandro in his
capacity as city milk inspector.

He pleaded guilty to stealing
$16.93 and went to prison.

His wife, frail young Helen Louise Doke, who remained in oc-
clusion during the murder trials,
swear she will stand by him and
be waiting for him when he is released.

"I wrecked Judson's life," she
said, "and I will do everything
I can to heal his wound. After
that terrible nightmare at Wood-
land, I thought he would never
want to see me again. But he
forgave me, and we had a second
honeymoon, hiding from the
world, while he was awaiting trial
on this other charge.

"Now they have taken him from
me again, but it will not be for
long. When he is free, we will go
far away from here and build a
new home and a new life for ourselves."

Mrs. Doke, who went to work
in a rug shop to help raise funds
for Doke's defense in the embezzlement trial, said she plans to

make her home in Marin County,
near San Quentin.

"We want to be as near to each
other as possible," she said.

"Even though the prison walls
are between us, the thought that
we are only a few miles apart will
bear us both up."

The "White Hibiscus" of the
slain poet's passionate love letters
said she does not know whether
she will ever write poetry again.

It was their common interest in poetry that led to their clandestine love idyll which culminated in Doke's shooting Hollingshead in a cabin at Woodland last July.

"There is no poetry in my heart
now," she said. "But there may
be again—sometime."

Doke, who maintained that he
was innocent of criminal intent in
the embezzlement, and that the
diverted funds were due him for
extra work, echoed his wife's plan
of rebuilding their lives on his release.

"We belong together," he said,
before he was taken to San Quentin. "Helen could not get along
in the world by herself and I want to be with her, to protect her. In
those first weeks in jail at Wood-
land, I thought of divorcing her,
but that's forgotten now. She allowed her reputation to be torn to shreds to save me.

"We'll go away somewhere and
forget all that's happened."

THE "Laxative Question"

DOCTORS SETTLED IT,
LONG AGO.

UNDER the doctor's care,
or in the hospital, you would get a
liquid laxative. And the liquid form
is what you would use at home, if
you knew what a doctor knows!

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe
relief from constipation.

The right liquid laxative gives
the right kind of help, and the right
amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each
time, you take less.

Once you have experienced this
comfort, you will never return to
any form of help that can't be
regulated to suit the need.

The liquid laxative generally used
is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It
contains senna and cascara, and
these are natural laxatives that form
no habit—even with children. Its
